

CAME AND APRILIA RACING TEAM ON TRACK TOGETHER IN THE MOTOGP CHAMPIONSHIP FOR THE THIRD CONSECUTIVE YEAR

MotoGP 2023 will start on 26 March with the first race in Portimao, Portugal, and the Treviso-based company will support racers Aleix Espargarò and Maverick Viñales

CAME, a world-leading Made in Italy company in the field of integrated solutions designed for the automation, control and security of residential, public and business environments, will return to the track for the third consecutive year as Official Sponsor of Aprilia Racing for the 2023 MotoGP World Championship, which will start on Sunday, 26 March, from the Portimao Circuit in Portugal. For this event, two top racers will be back on the new Aprilia RS-GP, which has been subject to major evolutions on the technical front.

"Last year we were protagonists of the World Championship until the end and experienced some important results that reconfirmed CAME's full trust in the Aprilia Racing team with which we have been sharing the emotions of the race weekends for three years now - comments Andrea Menuzzo, Chairman and CEO of CAME - In 2023 we will be back on track even more excited to be part of a team that is a symbol of the excellence and prestige of Made in Italy and we look forward to achieving new goals together".

Throughout the MotoGP23 world championship, which will see the introduction of the Sprint Race and two unprecedented Grand Prix in Kazakhstan and India, in addition to the 21 races of the premier class, CAME will be at the side of the Aprilia team accompanying the Spanish Aleix Espargarò, who finished fourth in the last edition, and Maverick Viñales who, after a season of refinement in which he brought home important results, is ready to achieve new ones.

The Italian team's racers may rely on a new and competitive Aprilia RS-GP with an even more powerful engine yet guaranteeing high drivability, and evolved aerodynamics confirming Aprilia's technological leadership in the field. The chassis is also renewed, based on the racers' feedback, and aims at the pursuit of traction and stability.
